

Environmental Company Policy of RIFCON GmbH

In our various fields of activity, we, the company RIFCON, deal in different ways with the influence of humans on nature and the environment. We understand that the environment cannot be considered separate from us, but that it is a part of us. We know that everything is connected with everything and what value nature has for us humans. Natural resources such as soil, water, air and biodiversity are our basis of life and must be preserved. We take our responsibility to future generations seriously. For us, environmental protection means acting responsibly and with foresight.

- The diversity of habitats, species and genes is the prerequisite for human life to be possible on earth. It is a particular concern of ours to preserve and support this diversity.
- We have implemented an environmental management system to identify weaknesses, define appropriate measures and continuously improve our environmental performance.
- We regularly review our environmental management system through internal and external audits.
- We comply with official and legal requirements, as well as other binding obligations, and also implement measures to conserve resources on our own initiative.
- Employees of our company are actively involved in environmental topics. They are trained, informed and motivated in this regard.
- We make our environmental policy accessible to the public and engage in an open exchange of experience with authorities, associations, science and all other interested parties.
